Compensation Committee Board of Directors

June 3, 2008

Dear Fellow Shareholders:

We write to you to advise you to discard any solicitation materials that you received with a GOLD proxy card. These materials are not from your Board. Please vote the enclosed WHITE proxy card.

We would also like to address the accusations of dissident shareholder, Keith Edquist, who has filed a proxy statement urging you to vote for him and his two nominees for directors of the Company. In the information he seeks to distribute to you he makes inaccurate and misleading statements, of which the following we feel compelled to address:

1. He claims we are not doing our job as your Compensation Committee. He is wrong. Here are the facts: We reviewed, analyzed and discussed at length a very large amount of written material when Mr. Edquist served on our committee and we continue to do so. The list of documents we reviewed while Mr. Edquist served on our committee was lengthy we have attached it as Exhibit A for your review. We continue to review the same type of information in making our decisions about executive pay.

2. He claims that when he was on the Compensation Committee, he alone objected to the excessive compensation agreements approved by the Compensation Committee for the Company's executives. He claims he objected to the Chief Financial Officer's (CFO's) executive compensation agreement. But in fact, he himself made the motion to approve the CFO's executive compensation agreement in 2005 and voted in favor of it. This was the same executive contract form which the Compensation Committee approved for the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) at the same meeting over Mr. Edquist's objection. Mr. Edquist never explained why, in his opinion, the executive compensation agreement was good for the CFO but not the CEO. Mr. Edquist fails to disclose that our CEO performs two significant jobs for us; in addition to being CEO, he is also President of our largest bank, TeamBank, N.A. This allows us to save significant costs.

3. Mr. Edquist also claims that Lloyd Byerhof also resigned from the Board of Directors as a result of disputes over executive compensation, but this is not true. Lloyd Byerhof's resignation letter filed with the SEC does not mention compensation at all. Mr.

Byerhof's resignation letter can be viewed at www.sec.gov. You can see for yourself that Mr. Edquist's claim is false.

The Compensation Committee, comprised solely of independent directors, seeks and analyzes the recommendations of executive compensation consultants, but we are vigilant in our compliance with the Compensation Committee charter and have always believed that executive compensation should be tied to Company performance. We study the various ways that executive compensation can be structured. The formulas we use to calculate executive bonuses are tailored to whether the executive has accomplished the targets set each year. We make appropriate adjustments when the Company's performance is significantly affected by singular events such as a Board decision to settle litigation or a Board decision to refinance our trust preferred securities. These are not issues over which an executive has control. In our view, bonuses should be determined based upon an executive's individual merits and singular events should not be allowed to camouflage the performance of the executive in achieving targeted earnings, revenues and strategic goals.

When a dissident shareholder asks you to favor him in this election, we urge you to carefully consider whether electing him and his nominees assures better performance. We can tell you that over the past six years, our experience with Mr. Edquist indicates that trying to work with him is not a path likely to breed success in the challenging economic environment faced by the banking industry. Please consider carefully whether you want to burden your Company with a former director who refuses to cooperate in even the most mundane matters such as refusing to use the Company's internet communication system for directors.

His recent proxy actions represent yet another expensive and unnecessary confrontation which we believe will not lead to increased shareholder value. Please call us to discuss your concerns. We want to answer your questions.

We ask that you vote the WHITE proxy card.

Sincerely,

/s/ Denis Kurtenbach, Chairman of the Compensation Committee (phone: 913-294-3689)

/s/ Harold Sevy, Compensation Committee Member (phone: 913-294-3281)

/s/ Kenneth Smith, Compensation Committee Member (phone: 913-294-5379)
