Funds from operations

Generally accepted accounting principles ( GAAP ) basis accounting for real estate assets utilizes historical cost accounting and assumes real estate values diminish over time. In an effort to overcome the difference between real estate values and historical cost accounting for real estate assets, the Board of Governors of the National Association of Real Estate Investment Trusts ( NAREIT ) established the measurement tool of FFO. Since its introduction, FFO has become a widely used non-GAAP financial measure among real estate investment trusts ( REITs ). The Company believes that FFO is helpful to investors as an additional measure of the performance of an equity REIT. The Company calculates FFO as net income (computed in accordance with GAAP), excluding gains from sales, plus real estate related depreciation and amortization, and after adjustments for unconsolidated partnerships and joint ventures. The primary reconciling item between GAAP net income attributable to the Company's common stockholders and FFO attributable to the Company's common stockholders is depreciation and amortization expense. The Company's FFO may differ from the methodology for calculating FFO utilized by other equity REITs, and, accordingly, may not be comparable to such other REITs. FFO should not be considered as an alternative to net income (determined in accordance with GAAP) as an indication of financial performance, or to cash flows from operating activities (determined in accordance with GAAP) as a measure of the Company's liquidity, nor is it indicative of funds available to fund the Company's cash needs, including its ability to make distributions.

Net operating income

Net operating income is a non-GAAP financial measure equal to income from continuing operations, the most directly comparable GAAP financial measure, plus loss on early extinguishment of debt, depreciation and amortization, interest expense, and general and administrative expense. The Company believes net operating income provides useful information to investors regarding the Company's financial condition and results of operations because it reflects only those income and expense items that are incurred at the property level. Therefore, the Company believes net operating income is a useful measure for evaluating the operating performance of our real estate assets.

Further, the Company believes net operating income is a key performance indicator and is useful to investors as a performance measure because, when compared across periods, net operating income reflects the impact on operations from trends in occupancy rates, rental rates, and operating costs, providing perspective not immediately apparent from income from continuing operations. Net operating income excludes certain components from income from continuing operations in order to provide results that are more closely related to the Company's results of operations from our properties. For example, interest expense is not necessarily linked to the operating performance of a real estate asset and is often incurred at the corporate level rather than at the property level. In addition, depreciation and amortization, because of historical cost accounting and useful life estimates, may distort operating performance at the property level. Net operating income presented by the Company may not be comparable to net operating income reported by other REITs that define net operating income differently. The Company believes that in order to facilitate a clear understanding of its operating results, net operating income should be examined in conjunction with income from continuing operations as presented in its consolidated statements of income. Net operating income should not be considered as an alternative to income from continuing operations as an indication of the Company's performance or as an alternative to cash flows as a measure of liquidity or the Company's ability to make distributions. In order to supplement an evaluation of the Company's results of operations over a given period, the Company also analyzes the operating performance for all properties that were fully operating for the entire periods presented separate from properties acquired subsequent to the first period presented, properties undergoing active development and active redevelopment, and corporate entities (legal entities performing general and administrative functions), which are excluded from same property results.
