Employee Q&A

1. Why is SuperMedia pursuing this transaction?

When we adopted our company strategy in the spring of 2011, one building block was the importance of securing national scale and scope to better serve local business, improve our competitive position and help us gain market share. This transaction fulfills that objective.

Over the past two years, Dex One and SuperMedia have been on the same path of transformation, fully embracing digital solutions to help local businesses grow through a suite of social, local and mobile marketing solutions. By joining together, we will have nationwide presence to increase market share with local businesses and achieve operating and service efficiencies.

The transaction will create a national provider of social, local and mobile marketing solutions through direct relationships with local businesses. The combined company will have over 3,100 consultants offering a full suite of marketing solutions to help businesses retain and add customers. Initially, the combined company will have relationships with more than 700,000 businesses.

2. Who is Dex One?

Similar to SuperMedia, Dex One Corporation is a leading marketing services company that helps local businesses reach, win, and keep ready-to-buy customers. Through access to a vast collection of highly valuable, proprietary local market intelligence, as well as the personal, hands-on service from approximately 1,500 dedicated marketing consultants, Dex One helps more than 350,000 active customers create custom-tailored marketing programs that effectively reach potential customers - wherever, whenever, and however they search.

Dex One delivers a broad range of products and services to help local businesses grow - from identifying target audiences and developing messaging, to optimizing marketing programs and leveraging appropriate products such as online and mobile search solutions, print yellow pages directories, and voice based search platforms.

3. How were the CEO, CFO and Chairman of Board positions decided?

The Boards decided the Dex One Chairman, Al Schultz, would lead the Board of Directors of the combined company as Chairman of the Board, while the SuperMedia CEO and CFO would be the CEO and CFO of the combined company. The SuperMedia and Dex One Boards felt it was appropriate to share these roles and responsibilities between the two companies.

4. What will be the makeup of the senior management team for the new company?

The composition of the new management team has yet to be determined. Members of the new senior management team will be nominated by Peter McDonald and approved by the majority of a committee consisting of two Dex One directors and two SuperMedia directors.

5. Where will the company be headquartered and what will happen to the other headquarters location?

A decision regarding the location of the new company's headquarters and other principal locations also will be made during the course of merger integration planning.

6. Will there be job cuts as a result of this transaction?

While this combination is about growth, as in any combination of this size, there will be some overlap in job functions. Importantly, we've only just announced the transaction and no decisions have been made at this time. We will carefully study the opportunities to combine these two great companies in a manner that builds on our collective past successes, and enables us to create a great organization going forward.

With regard to headcount, the exact number of positions will be determined through the merger integration process.

We know that combinations can be difficult events for people to go through, and we are committed to doing our best to help team members move through the combination in a positive manner and treating everyone fairly and with respect regarding future employment decisions.

7. Will the combined company be reducing the number of marketing consultants?

Given the companies' complementary geographies there is little overlap, therefore we don't expect significant reductions in our field operations.

8. Will there be relocation opportunities as a result of this transaction?

For some employees, this may be a possibility.

9. What happens if a sales person from both companies has the same client? How will this impact the commission?

The company will determine how to resolve these situations during integration planning.

10. Which company's brand will be used going forward? What happens to SuperMedia.com, DexOne.com and the different companies print and mobile properties?

The merged companies will combine after the close of the transaction in a corporate entity called Dex Media; however, this is not intended to be a new brand in the marketplace. The Dex One and SuperMedia names and the brand names for their solutions and services have significant value with businesses and consumers. Decisions regarding if and when to implement brand and name changes in local markets will be made after further evaluation and planning.

11. Will SuperMedia remain the official publisher of the Verizon Yellow Pages?

Yes.

12. What should I tell my clients?

If asked, you can tell clients that we are excited about this announcement and believe a combination will create a stronger company better able to help local businesses grow using a complete suite of social, local and mobile media.

Dex One and SuperMedia are committed to maintaining a full-time local presence in our markets so that we can engage with clients in-person.

You should reassure clients that their business and our relationship with them are of utmost importance to all of us, and today's announcement will have no effect on how we conduct business with them. We will continue to provide the same world-class set of offerings they expect from us.

13. Will systems, policies and procedures change?

Over time, operating systems, policies and procedures that incorporate best practices from our two companies will be standardized across the organization. We do not anticipate any significant changes to day-to-day operations.

14. Will this transaction impact benefits and compensation?

As part of the integration process, we will review the benefits packages for both companies and expect to migrate toward a unified plan.

15. Will supervisors remain the same?

Roles and responsibilities will be determined as part of the integration planning process.

16. How will this transaction affect the different unions?

Relationships are governed by the collective bargaining agreements both companies have with their union-represented employees.

17. When will the transaction close?

We expect the transaction to close in the fourth quarter of 2012.

18. What happens if the transaction doesn't go through?

We fully expect the transaction to close during the fourth quarter of 2012. If not, the two companies will continue to transform themselves independently.

19. What happens for employees between now and the closing of the transaction?

It remains business as usual for all employees until the transaction closes. In the coming months, the two companies will begin working to plan the combination of our companies, and we are committed to keeping you updated on important developments.

20. What should I do if I am contacted by external parties about the transaction?

It is important that we speak with one voice. Consistent with company policy, please forward all investor calls to Cliff Wilson at 972-453-6188 and media calls to Andy Shane at 972-453-6473. If you have questions, please do not hesitate to reach out to your supervisor or any of us on the senior management team.
