Peace Arch's Award-Winning "Campus Vets" Television Series Renewed For Second Season on Life Network

TORONTO, ONT. - Peace Arch Entertainment Group Inc. (AMEX and TSX: PAE), a diversified Canadian entertainment company, today announced that its award-winning documentary series Campus Vets has been renewed for a second season. We are very pleased that Alliance Atlantis (NASDAQ: AACB; TSX: AAC.A, AAC.B) and Life Network have picked up another season of this popular program, stated Blair Reekie, President of the company's factual subsidiary. The fantastic support from viewers across Canada, as well as the assistance of the Canadian Television Fund, will allow us to begin production this summer on another 13 exciting episodes. "Campus Vets" airs weekly in primetime in Canada on Life Network and Peace Arch retains all worldwide rights to the series.

The ongoing series follows the stories of passionate young students at one of the most modern and competitive veterinary colleges in North America, the Western College of Veterinary Medicine. From dogs and horses to eagles and moose, "Campus Vets" features a diverse range of exhilarating animal stories.

Each half-hour episode documents the emotionally challenging, physically demanding, and occasionally hilarious situations faced by the aspiring veterinarians as they pursue the demanding career of saving injured and sick animals. From the working ranch to the adrenalin of a high-tech ER, "Campus Vets" captures moments when animals, owners and veterinarians are bound together in a desperate race against time.

Campus Vets is a unique, insider's look at both a pre-eminent Canadian medical facility and the everyday struggles on the journey to becoming a veterinarian, said Erica Benson, Vice President of Programming, Life Network and Discovery Health Channel. In witnessing experiences that are every bit as dramatic as those faced by doctors in a hospital emergency room, we discover what actually inspires these students to dedicate their lives to working with animals.

In related news, "Campus Vets" was recently awarded a 2004 Leo Award by the Motion Picture Arts & Sciences Foundation of British Columbia for 'Best Information Series.'

"Campus Vets" is distributed in the United States by Program Partners of Santa Monica, California and Internationally by Portfolio Entertainment of Toronto.
