ClearSign Comments on filing by Anthony DiGiandomenico Seeking Shareholder Support for Calling a Special Meeting for the Removal and Election of Directors

SEATTLE, November 12, 2018 – ClearSign Combustion Corporation (Nasdaq: CLIR) ("ClearSign" or the "Company"), an emerging leader in industrial combustion technologies that improve energy and operational efficiencies while dramatically reducing emissions, commented today on the filing made by Anthony DiGiandomenico with the Securities and Exchange Commission of a preliminary solicitation statement seeking the support of the Company's shareholders in making a demand that the Company call a special meeting of shareholders to vote for the removal of the existing entire board of directors and to elect a new slate of directors, among other matters.

"Mr. DiGiandomenico's request is an attempt to bypass our previously announced succession plans and place unvetted candidates on the board and in the CEO position. We urge you to reject his request for support to call a special meeting," said Rob Hoffman, ClearSign Chairman of the Board. "The Company has maintained an active dialogue with him, as we will detail in our upcoming filing with the SEC, as well as with other shareholders in an effort not only to understand their concerns, but to resolve shareholder concerns while simultaneously following best corporate governance practices. Despite these good faith efforts, however, he wishes to replace directors without the benefit of a process that ensures that the Company can consider a broad variety of potential candidates and take into consideration the skills and experience of the new CEO."

"On October 4, we announced the Company's leadership succession plans which included my intention to retire from ClearSign, the engagement of a nationally recognized search firm to assist with the Board's CEO recruitment efforts and my commitment to ensuring a smooth transition" said Steve Pirnat, ClearSign CEO. "Additionally, at that time, director Jeffrey Ott stepped down from the board to focus on his other responsibilities and commitments. Rather than rush to find a replacement, we stated our intention to consider new board members, with an emphasis on diversity of talents and backgrounds. In addition, on November 6th the board voted, in line with best corporate governance practices, to separate the roles of CEO and Chairman and appointed Rob Hoffman to serve as Chairman, effective immediately."

"As I mentioned on our quarterly call, the Board has actively been vetting and meeting with CEO candidates," said Rob Hoffman. "Additionally, the Board recognizes the value of refreshing its membership and we are casting a wide net in searching for new members, including working with the National Association of Corporate Directors to find director candidates. Importantly, at a meeting held on October 30th, the Board considered the annual compensation paid to non-executive directors and intends to not only reduce total compensation paid to Board members, but also change from a cash-based to an all-equity based compensation structure, so that the interests of the non-executive directors are more fully aligned with our shareholders. The members of the Board have also decided to accelerate the scheduling of the Company's annual meeting to the earliest practical date in order to introduce the Company's shareholders to the new Board members," said Mr. Hoffman.

“We believe a proxy contest to replace our board members will not yield a slate of directors materially earlier than the Company’s own process, which is currently well underway. But acting in undo haste may yield a result contrary to the best interests of all Clearsign shareholders by seating a board that may not be optimal to lead the Company in the exciting times ahead. Further, a wholesale turnover in leadership at the Board and senior management level at this critical commercial juncture for the Company may create costly, if not fatal setbacks to the progress made thus far. It should be noted that the Company has already added two new board members (of five) during the year “

“We remain committed to a prudent, disciplined, thoughtful, step-by-step evaluation of new candidates, which takes into consideration the current transition in corporate leadership as well as future board leadership needs while maintaining the strong and very promising internal focus on the Company’s pipeline of commercial opportunities that we seek to convert into revenue for the Company and the creation of shareholder value for all CLIR investors. It is this focus, we believe, that will enable us to deliver significant shareholder value in the future rather than a costly and disruptive proxy contest which, at most, may slightly accelerate the board nomination process,” concluded Pirnat.
