Principal Assumptions for Profit Forecast

1. Below are the principal assumptions on which the Profit Forecast has been prepared.

2. There will be no material change in the politics, laws and regulations, financial and economic condition of all countries and regions that the Group's businesses operate in.

3. The Group will continue to be granted authorization to operate existing routes and flights and new routes proposed to be launched in 2003. The Group operated 350 domestic and international routes with 4,300 flights per week as at the end of March 2003. As a result of the outbreak of Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome ("SARS"), the Group reduced its flights to 1,433 per week in early June 2003 and suspended around 12 routes. The Group anticipates that the number of flights is expected to return to a normal level and its suspended routes are expected to be re-opened gradually in late June 2003. Besides, the Group launched five new routes during the first six months of 2003 (with an average of 12 flights per week). Currently the Group has no plans to launch new routes in the second half year of 2003.

4. The Group will continue to obtain renewals from the CAAC of all licences necessary for the operation of its aviation business.

5. All airline companies are exempted from payments for the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund, business taxes and relevant surcharges from May 1, 2003 to September 30, 2003, as a result of the Chinese Government's efforts to reduce financial pressure on China's civil aviation industry resulting from the outbreak of SARS. Except for this, there will be no material change in the tax base or tax rate of all countries and regions that the Group's businesses operate in.

6. The Group will continue to be supplied by domestic aviation fuel suppliers, including China Aviation Oil Supply Co., Ltd., Lan Tian Aviation Oil Supply Co., Ltd., East China Aviation Oil Supply Co., Ltd. and North China Aviation Oil Supply Co., Ltd., with sufficient aviation fuel necessary for all flights on the terms and conditions set forth by the State.

7. The Chinese Government will continue to provide the insurance guarantee necessary for all aircraft of the Group.

8. The Group will purchase new aircraft and put them into service according to existing plans. The Group will have available sufficient financing to purchase new aircraft and obtain guarantees from banks to support financing arrangements when necessary. As of the end of May 2003, the Group had already purchased three new B737-800 aircraft from Boeing Company as planned and received long-term loans from Bank of China in a total amount of about RMB1,140 million to purchase aircraft according to its financing arrangements. The Group will, as scheduled, purchase another four new B737-800 aircraft from July to November this year and the Group has obtained the agreement of Bank of China and the Industrial and Commercial Bank of China to provide long-term bank loans in a total amount of about RMB1,520 million to purchase the aircraft. The depreciation of these new aircraft purchased this year is around RMB50 million. The Group would face heavy penalties and damage to its reputation if the purchase of these aircraft cannot be completed as scheduled.

Edgar Filing: CHINA SOUTHERN AIRLINES CO LTD - Form 6-K

9. The Group's business will not be adversely affected by labour shortages, labour disputes or any factor beyond the management's control. The Group will be able to recruit enough employees to satisfy such service requirements as contemplated in its Profit Forecast.

10. There will be no acute price competition in China's civil aviation industry in 2003 and the average airfare will be no lower than for the same period last year. There will be no material change in published airfares for domestic routes in 2003. Domestic routes charge passengers airfare based on the published airfare set forth by the CAAC plus a fuel surcharge and minus a preferential discount. There has been no adjustment in the published airfare from the beginning of 2002 to the date of the Prospectus. The price discount ratio given by the Group to our passengers is determined according to the stipulations of the CAAC and taking into consideration competition on various routes. There will be no material change in such price discount ratio.

Oil surcharge is charged to passengers of domestic routes according to CAAC's approval documents as follows:

From January 1, 2002 to September 30, 2002	No more than 8% of published airfare for every passenger
From October 1, 2002 to June 22, 2003	No more than 14% of published airfare for every passenger
From June 23, 2003 onwards	No more than 8% of published airfare for every passenger

The Group's passenger yield (calculated by passenger revenue per kilometre) was RMB0.596 from January to April this year, a 3% increase from RMB0.577 for the same period last year and an approximately 2% rise from the annual average RMB0.584 for 2002, mainly resulting from an increase in domestic fuel surcharge charging rate in October last year. However, with a drop of charging rate of domestic fuel surcharge this June, the Group foresees a similar average charging rate of fuel surcharge this year compared to that of last year. According to current domestic airfare and discount level, the Group forecasts that the passenger yield for 2003 will be similar to that of last year, i.e., RMB0.584. The passenger yield during May to December 2003 is expected to be RMB0.575, a 2% drop from RMB0.587 for the same period last year.

11. Currently, the outbreak of SARS is contained to a certain degree in China. The World Health Organization ("WHO") announced on June 13, 2003 in Geneva the lifting of its recommendation that people should postpone all but essential travel to Tianjin, Hebei, Shanxi and Inner Mongolia in China. In addition, WHO removed Tianjin, Hebei, Shanxi, Inner Mongolia, Jilin, Jiangsu, Hubei and Guangdong from the list of areas with recent local transmission on the same date. Shigeru Omi,

Edgar Filing: CHINA SOUTHERN AIRLINES CO LTD - Form 6-K

the WHO's Western Pacific regional director announced in Beijing on June 24, 2003 that the travel warning to Beijing had been lifted and Beijing was now off the SARS-affected list. At this time, all provinces in China previously subject to the WHO travel warning or in the list of areas with recent local transmission are no longer categorized as such. There is an indication of recovery in China's civil aviation transportation industry in June. However, SARS is an independent, occasional and unexpected event with no similar occurrence in the world for comparison. Therefore, no forecast of the recovery and development of the passenger transportation business in respect of China's civil aviation industry for the period from June to December 2003 can be made directly based on historical data. As a result, assuming there is no recurrence of SARS, an assumption as to the passenger transportation business of China's civil aviation industry from June to December 2003 is made as follows:

(1) In June 2003, China civil aviation transportation industry will achieve a passenger volume of 35% of that of the same period in 2002.

(2) In July 2003, China civil aviation transportation industry will achieve a passenger volume of 80% of that of the same period in 2002.

(3) In August 2003, China civil aviation transportation industry will achieve a passenger volume of 100% of that of the same period in 2002.

(4) In September 2003, China civil aviation transportation industry will achieve a passenger volume of 108% of that of the same period in 2002.

(5) During October to December 2003, China civil aviation transportation industry will return to a normal level, achieving a passenger volume of 114% of that of the same period in 2002.

12. There will be no material changes in exchange rates and interest rates.

13. There will be no unforeseeable factors or force majeure that will materially and adversely affect the Group's forecast performance for the year 2003.

CERTAIN RISK FACTORS DISCLOSED IN THE PROSPECTUS

The following is an extract of selected risk factors from the Prospectus:

1. Although the Group currently has a healthy operating cash flow, there is no assurance that sufficient cash flows will continue to be available for the Group to meet its major funding requirements for anticipated development. Accordingly, the continued ability of the Group to raise sufficient funds is a factor that could have an impact on the Group's operations and further development.

2. Although the B737-800 aircraft that the Company intends to purchase are superior to the existing B737-300 and B737-500 aircraft in terms of performance, operational reliability and comfort, there is uncertainty as to the ability of the Company to increase its market share in line with the capacity of the new aircraft.

3. The PRC has joined the WTO. The PRC market for aircraft maintenance and repair and computer ticketing systems will accordingly be opened to foreign providers. As such, increased competition from foreign companies may have an adverse effect on the operating results of the Group.

4. In the event that the insurance coverage for third party war liability of claim for more than US$50 million per incident, under war liability insurance provided to the Group by the PRC Government is withdrawn, or premiums for war liability insurance are increased, insurance premium expenditures of the Group will increase.
