Item 2.05 Costs Associated with Exit or Disposal Activities

On January 12, 2005, The Boeing Company (the Company) decided to conclude production of the 717 commercial airplane in 2006 due to the lack of overall market demand for the airplane. The Company's decision is expected to result in total pre-tax charges of approximately $385 million, of which $280 million is expected to be incorporated in the Company's 2004 fourth quarter and year end results, $60 million is expected to be recognized in 2005, and $45 million is expected to be recognized over the period 2005-2007. The Company had previously stated on January 14, 2005 that termination of the 717 line would result in a $340 million charge to 2004 fourth quarter and year end results, but subsequently, the Company determined that $60 million (pension settlement costs) of that $340 million charge would instead be incorporated in 2005 results.

Of the $280 million charge that is expected to be incorporated in the Company's 2004 fourth quarter and year end results, supplier termination charges are estimated to be $171 million; production disruption and related charges are estimated to be $36 million; pension/post-retirement curtailment charges are estimated to be $43 million; and severance charges are estimated to be $30 million. Of the $105 million charge that is expected to be recorded by the Company in periods subsequent to 2004, pension settlement charges are estimated to be $60 million and plant shutdown charges are estimated to be $45 million. The termination of the 717 line will result in $385 million dollars of cash expenditures that are expected to occur during 2005-2007.

Item 2.06 Material Impairments

On January 12, 2005, the Company decided to recognize a pre-tax charge of approximately $275 million related to the initial production of aerial refueling tankers for the U.S. Air Force. The Company reached its decision as a result of its regular quarter and year-end reviews and reflects the Company's updated assessment of securing the specific USAF 767 Tanker contract. The Company estimates future cash expenditures to be approximately $49 million.
