Item 2(d). Criminal Proceedings.

During the last five years, neither the Filing Parties (or a controlling entity thereof) nor any executive officer or director of the Filing Parties (or a controlling entity thereof) has been convicted in a criminal proceeding (excluding traffic violations or similar misdemeanors).

Item 2(e). Civil Securities Law Proceedings.

During the last five years, neither the Filing Parties (or a controlling entity thereof) nor any executive officer or director of any of the Filing Parties (or a controlling entity thereof) has been a party to a civil proceeding of a judicial or administrative body of competent jurisdiction and as a result of such proceeding was or is subject to a judgment, decree or final order enjoining future violations of, or prohibiting or mandating activities subject to, federal or state securities laws or finding any violation with respect to such laws.

Item 3. Source and Amount of Funds or Other Consideration

Each of the filing parties used working capital to fund their purchases of shares of Common Stock.

Item 4. Purpose of Transaction

The Filing Parties continue to own a total of 2,153,575 shares, or 5.3%, of the Company's total outstanding Common Stock. The Filing Parties acquired the shares of the Company's Common Stock owned by them for investment purposes. The Filing Parties may in the future take such action with respect to their investment in the Company's Common Stock as they deem appropriate including, without limitation, purchasing additional shares of the Company's Common Stock or selling some or all of the shares of the Company's Common Stock owned by them.

On March 28, 2007, the Company announced that the Venezuelan Ministry of Environment (MinAmb) has approved the Brisas Environmental and Social Impact Assessment for the exploitation and processing of gold and copper mineralization. As a result, the MinAmb has issued the permit or authorization for affecting natural resources for the commencement of the construction phase of the Brisas Project. The Company noted that it expects to finance the construction of Brisas with a combination of debt and equity.

The Filing Parties are concerned about the dilution which would result from the equity financing(s) to finance the construction of Brisas. The Filing Parties believe that the Company may have various superior alternatives to these dilutive share issuances that could both better maximize shareholder value and reduce shareholder risk, while also further ensuring the successful development of the Las Brisas mine. Those alternatives could include gold and/or copper loans, forward sales of gold and/or copper, a joint venture with a third party, a strategic investment in the Company by a major mining company at a premium-to-market price or a sale of the company. With projected life-of-mine Cash Operating Costs of US$142/oz² (including Exploitation Tax) and Total Costs (Cash Operating Costs + Exploitation Tax + Capital Cost (initial and sustaining)) of US$253/oz³, the Filing

² Gold Reserve, Inc. press release, Gold Reserve Announces Improved Brisas Project Economics and Updates Brisas Project 43-101 Report , dated November 13, 2006. As per the press release, these figures are net of copper credit and exclude sunk costs.

Parties believe that the economics of the project could be attractive to a wide range of potential partners, investors and acquirors. Therefore, given that, among the alternatives available to the Company, a sale of the Company may be, or may become, the best alternative available for the shareholders of the Company, it is important that, (1) interested parties have an opportunity to make offers to acquire the Company and (2) that shareholders of the Company have the ability to consider any potential offers.

In this regard, the Filing Parties were pleased with certain of the statements made by A. Douglas Belanger, President of the Company, during a conference call hosted by the Company on April 5, 2007, regarding the procedures that the Company will follow in response to offers to acquire the Company. Mr. Belanger stated that a special committee of independent directors would review any offer to acquire the Company, shareholders of the Company would be informed of any such offer and shareholders would have the opportunity to determine the acceptance or rejection of such offer.

Mr. Belanger subsequently indicated that parties who have requested access to the data room have been required to enter into confidentiality agreements that include stand-stills prohibiting them from making a hostile tender offer for the Company. It is important to keep in mind that a so-called hostile tender offer is not hostile as far as shareholders are concerned, particularly if it is an offer to acquire all the company's shares for cash at a substantial premium above the current market price of the stock. In that case, a hostile tender offer may be very beneficial to shareholders. The Filing Parties are generally opposed to agreements that prevent potential acquirors from making offers directly to shareholders, particularly when, as in this case, the company has a Canadian style poison pill, which gives the board an adequate period of time to generate competing offers. This restriction should be eliminated from the Company's confidentiality-standstill agreements, unless those agreements guarantee that the Company will implement the commitment Mr. Belanger made in the conference call to: (1) publicly disclose any offer the board or management receives to acquire the Company and (2) put the offer to a shareholder vote even if the offer is not approved by the board.

It is also important to keep in mind that some confidentiality-standstill agreements may restrict acquisition proposals to the board, as well as direct offers to shareholders. This type of standstill agreement may, in effect, require the board to pre-approve an offer before it can be made. Given investors' reliance on Mr. Belanger's commitment to put all offers to a shareholder vote, it is essential that the Company refrain from adding provisions to the standstill agreement that interfere with the freedom of the potential buyer to make an offer to the board.

Mr. Belanger mentioned that the standstill agreements would lapse if an offer is made to acquire the Company. This is a desirable provision as long as the agreement does not prevent offers from being made or disadvantage parties that make an offer.

To allay these concerns, the Filing Parties believe that the Company should publicize the form of confidentiality-standstill agreement that it is using so that investors can be assured that it does not discourage or prohibit potential buyers from making offers to acquire the Company, and it guarantees that shareholders will have an opportunity to accept or reject these offers.
