No Casualties or Oil Spillage Due to Typhoon Chan Chu

(Hong Kong, May 25, 2006) - CNOOC Limited (NYSE: CEO, SEHK: 883, "the Company") announced today that Typhoon Chan Chu did not cause any casualties or oil spillage due to the Company's continuous focus on health safety and environment ("HSE").

Typhoon Chan Chu, the first one this year, made an unexpected 90 degree turn after arriving in Eastern South China Sea. The center of Typhoon Chan Chu struck directly at Liuhua oil field. The packing winds exceeded the maximum resisting capacity on typhoon within a century. The Company had been monitoring Typhoon Chan Chu and completed the evacuation before its arrival. The Company mobilized 144 flights to evacuate over 3,840 offshore personnel from 25 platforms and the floating processing storage and offloading units ("FPSO") of 17 oil fields in the Eastern South China Sea, including the staff of our contractors. The Company shut down wells and production facilities before the evacuation.

Thanks to the sufficient preparations, Typhoon Chan Chu did not cause any casualties and oil spills.

After the landing of Typhoon Chan Chu, the Company thoroughly examined all the oil fields in the area. None of the production facilities except those of Liuhua oil field, were damaged and all have resumed production. Damages to some of the production facilities in Liuhua oil field are discovered upon examination. The Company has mobilized various service companies, including subsea services and examination contractors to conduct the subsea examination so as to determine damages. According to the examination, seven anchors and three risers are split and broken.
