PREFERRED INCOME FUND INCORPORATED

Dear Shareholder:

The Preferred Income Fund got off to a terrific start during the first quarter of fiscal 2003. For the three months ending February 28th, the Fund earned 9.8% on Net Asset Value and 12.4% on the market value of its shares. During the same period, the Lipper US Government Fund Index rose 3.9% and the Lipper BBB Rated Corporate Debt Index was up 5.6%. There were several factors underpinning the strong performance of the Fund, but one in particular stands out.

The centerpiece of the Bush Administration's Jobs and Growth Package announced in early January is a proposal to eliminate the double taxation of dividends. Under current law, corporate earnings may be subject to two levels of taxation - one at the corporate level and once again at the shareholder level. The Administration believes that multiple taxation of corporate profits increases the cost of capital and creates "severe economic distortions". Some in Congress, however, have expressed doubt about the wisdom and timing of the President's proposals. In the parlance of Washington, this means there will be some serious horse-trading in the coming months, and the eventual outcome is very much up in the air.

Preferred securities can be divided into two basic types - traditional preferreds, which pay dividends, and taxable or "hybrid" preferreds, which pay interest. If enacted, the Administration's proposal would directly impact holders of traditional preferreds only. Not surprisingly, since the proposal was announced traditional preferreds have turned in the best performance.

As discussed in previous letters, over the past several quarters we have been increasing the portfolio's allocation to traditional preferreds. Some might assume that the shift was in anticipation of what might come out of Washington. Not so! The actual reason for the reallocation was based on the same decision-making process employed consistently throughout the life of the Fund. We have felt that in recent months, the yield levels on traditional preferreds have been more attractive than other segments of the market. We considered this an aberration and therefore a great opportunity to purchase undervalued securities. Regardless of the legislative outcome, traditional preferreds still look attractive by most historical measures, and we are very comfortable with the current composition of the investment portfolio.

The historically low level of interest rates in the United States presents some challenges as we strive to maintain the current level of income produced from the assets in the portfolio. Sustained low levels of rates could ultimately result in issuers refinancing higher yielding securities with lower coupon issues much like homeowners refinance a mortgage.

Two of our basic investment approaches should help ward off this income erosion. First, we always attempt to buy undervalued securities. If we are right, the Fund will have more money to invest in additional income producing securities. Second, we generally avoid those securities that pay a high dividend rate but have a greater likelihood of being redeemed by the issuer in the near future. Such issues provide short-term gratification but long-term pain if the investor is forced to reinvest in a lower interest rate environment.

The strategy has been generally effective thus far, but the challenge will increase if interest rates continue to fall and remain low for an extended period of time. The first quarter will be a tough act to follow, but you can count on us to stick to our strategy and provide you with candid assessments of our progress.
